ORDER

15 This is an action on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 16 2254, brought by petitioner Roderick Hymon, appearing pro se. Before the court is respondents' 17 Motion to File Pleading in Excess of Thirty Pages and their Answer to the surviving grounds of the 18 petition. (ECF No. 26.) Petitioner did not file a reply. That motion shall be granted and the Court 19 shall address the petition.

20 || I. Background

Petitioner was convicted on December 2, 2002, following a jury trial wherein petitioner represented himself with standby counsel. Exhibits 54-61.¹ Petitioner was convicted on three of five charges: Robbery with the Use of a Deadly Weapon, Larceny from the Person, and ²⁶ ¹ The exhibits referenced in this Order were submitted by respondents in support of their motion to dismiss and are found in the Court's docket at ECF Nos. 11 through 13.

1 Assult with a Deadly Weapon, Counts II, III, and V, respectively.² Counsel was appointed to 2 represent petitioner for purposes of sentencing and direct appeal. Exhibit 64. At sentencing, 3 petitioner was adjudged an habitual criminal as to all counts. He was sentenced to concurrent terms 4 of life with the possibility of parole after ten years on Counts II and III and a single term of life with 5 the possibility of parole after ten years on Count V to run consecutive to Count III. Exhibit 67. The 6 Judgment of Conviction was entered on April 15, 2003. Exhibit 68.

Petitioner appealed raising claims of trial court error as to the habitual criminal enhancement, judicial misconduct, inadequate Faretta canvass, and also presented certain Anders/Sanchez arguments.³ Exhibit 86. The conviction was affirmed by the Nevada Supreme Court on May 26, 2005. Exhibit 96; See Hymon v. State, 121 Nev. 200, 111 P.3d 1092 (2005). A petition for rehearing was denied. Exhibit 98.

12 On August 19, 2005, petitioner filed a petition for post-conviction relief in the state 13 district court. Exhibit 99. The petition was denied and petitioner appealed, raising thirty-four 14 grounds for relief. Exhibit 103 and 109. The Nevada Supreme Court affirmed denial of relief on 15 post-conviction, but remanded the matter for a hearing on pre-trial detention credits and a new 16 sentencing to properly address the habitual criminal enhancements. Exhibit 112. New counsel was 17 appointed for re-sentencing, which was finally conducted on March 12, 2008. Exhibit 115 and 120.
18 Petitioner was sentenced to three concurrent ten to twenty-five year terms. Exhibit 120.

19 In a subsequent state post-conviction petition, petitioner claimed his sentence was 20 invalid “under the constitutional guarantees of due process of law, equal protection of the laws and a 21 reliable sentence due to ineffective [sic] assistance of counsel.” Exhibit 122. This petition was ² Exhibits 61. Petitioner was found not guilty on charges of Burglary and a second count of Assault with a Deadly Weapon.

³ Faretta v. California, 422 U.S. 806 (1975); Anders v. California, 386 U.S. 738 (1967) and Sanchez v. State, 85 Nev. 95, 450 P.2d 793 (1969).

1 denied and the denial was upheld on appeal. Exhibits 133 and 140. The instant petition was dated 2 May 27, 2009 and was filed with this Court on June 29, 2009 after the matter of petitioner's filing 3 fee was resolved.

4 In his federal petition, petitioner raised some 45 claims for relief. The petition 5 presents a pattern of claims wherein for the most part, a group of claims rely on a single statement of 6 facts to support several alleged violations.

7 As a result of respondents' Motion to Dismiss, Grounds 5, 8, 14, 17, 20, 26, 32, 34, 8 36, 38, and 41 remain for further consideration.

9 II. Discussion

10 A. Adequacy of Pleading

11 Respondents contend that certain claims in the petition must be denied because they 12 are conclusory; providing insufficient factual support for the allegations presented. Specifically, 13 Respondents argue that Ground 5 is insufficiently pled because petitioner fails to allege that counsel 14 knew or had reason to know that exculpatory materials existed or had been withheld; that Ground 8 15 is inadequately pled because, while petitioner argues he suffered double jeopardy in being convicted 16 of larceny from the person which he alleges is a lesser-included charge of robbery, and assault which 17 he alleges is a lesser-included charge of robbery with the use of a deadly weapon, he fails to discuss 18 the various elements of those crimes or how they violate double jeopardy; that Ground 14 is 19 inadequate because petitioner failed to show that the distance in inches or feet between the 20 perpetrator and the victim is an element of the crime of assault with a deadly weapon when claiming 21 the State did not prove all the necessary elements of that crime; that Ground 17 is conclusory 22 because his claim that the court improperly denied a lesser-included instruction on the charge of 23 assault with a deadly weapon does not demonstrate that drawing a deadly weapon in a threatening 24 manner is actually a "lesser-included" of the assault charge; and, finally, that Grounds 34 and 36 are 25 inadequately pled because the petitioner does not specifically identify what dangers, disadvantages

1 and consequences that the trial court failed to mention during the Faretta canvasses.

2 Conclusory allegations, not supported by a statement of specific facts, do not warrant 3 habeas corpus relief. Jones v. Gomez, 66 F.3d 199, 205 (9th Cir. 1995), cert. denied, 517 U.S. 1143
4 (1996). A petitioner must state specific, particularized facts which entitle him or her to habeas 5 corpus relief for each ground specified. These facts must consist of sufficient detail to enable the 6 court to determine, from the face of the petition alone, whether the petition merits further habeas 7 corpus review. Adams v. Armontrout, 897 F.2d 332, 334 (8th Cir. 1990).

8 Respondents' argument fails as to Grounds 5, 8, 14, 34 and 36. Those grounds state 9 sufficient facts to allow the court to conclude the claims warrant review. Ground 17, however, is 10 conclusory. Petitioner fails to identify the elements of the two crimes in any way so as to show even 11 the possibility of one being the lesser included of the other. Thus, this Court finds that Ground 17 12 does not warrant further review and it shall be dismissed.

13 B. Legal Standard for Merits Review

14 28 U.S.C. §2254(d), a provision of the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act 15 (AEDPA), provides the standards of review that this Court applies to the petition in this case:

16 An application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of a 17 person in custody pursuant to the judgment of a State court shall not be 18 granted with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in State court proceedings unless the adjudication of the claim --

19 (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an 20 unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or 21 (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable 22 determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding.

23 28 U.S.C. §2254(d).

24 A state court decision is contrary to clearly established Supreme Court precedent, 25 within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. §2254, "if the state court applies a rule that contradicts the

1 governing law set forth in [the Supreme Court's] cases" or "if the state court confronts a set of facts
 2 that are materially indistinguishable from a decision of [the Supreme Court] and nevertheless arrives
 3 at a result different from [the Supreme Court's] precedent." Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. 63, 123 4 S.Ct. 1166, 1173 (2003) (quoting Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362, 405-06, 120 S.Ct. 1495 (2000)), 5 and citing Bell v. Cone, 535 U.S. 685, 694, 122 S.Ct. 1843 (2002).

6 A state court decision is an unreasonable application of clearly established Supreme 7 Court precedent, within the meaning of 28 U.S.C. §2254(d), "if the state court identifies the correct 8 governing legal principle from [the Supreme Court's] decisions but unreasonably applies that 9 principle to the facts of the prisoner's case." Lockyer v. Andrade, 538 U.S. at 74, 123 S.Ct. at 1174 10 (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 413, 120 S.Ct. 1495). The "unreasonable application" clause requires 11 the state court decision to be more than incorrect or erroneous; the state court's application of clearly 12 established law must be objectively unreasonable. Id. (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 409, 120 S.Ct.
 13 1495).

14 In determining whether a state court decision is contrary to federal law, this Court 15 looks to the state courts' last reasoned decision. See Ylst v. Nunnemaker, 501 U.S. 797, 803-04 16 (1991); Shackelford v. Hubbard, 234 F.3d 1072, 1079 n.2 (9th Cir. 2000), cert. denied, 122 S.Ct.
 17 324 (2001). With respect to pure questions of fact, "a determination of a factual issue made by a 18 State court shall be presumed to be correct," and the petitioner "shall have the burden of rebutting 19 the presumption of correctness by clear and convincing evidence." 28 U.S.C. §2254(e)(1).

20 B. Ineffective Assistance of Counsel

21 The majority of the surviving claims raise allegations of the ineffective assistance of 22 counsel on appeal. Effective assistance of appellate counsel is guaranteed by the Due Process Clause 23 of the Fourteenth Amendment. Evitts v. Lucey, 469 U.S. 387, 391-405, 105 S.Ct. 830, 832-841
 24 (1985). Claims of ineffective assistance of appellate counsel are reviewed according to Strickland's 25 two-pronged test. Miller v. Keeney, 882 F.2d 1428, 1433 (9th Cir.1989); United States v. Birtle, 792 26

1 F.2d 846, 847 (9th Cir.1986); See, also, Penson v. Ohio, 488 U.S. 75 (1988) (holding that where a 2 defendant has been actually or constructively denied the assistance of appellate counsel altogether, 3 the Strickland standard does not apply and prejudice is presumed; the implication is that Strickland 4 does apply where counsel is present but ineffective).

5 Under Styrickland, to prove ineffective assistance of counsel, petitioner must prove 6 (1) that his attorney's actions were outside the wide range of professionally competent assistance, 7 and (2) that counsel's action's prejudiced him. Strickland v. Washington, 466 U.S. 668, 687-90
 8 (1984). Thus, petitioner must show that his appellate counsel's performance was objectively 9 unreasonable in failing to identify and bring claim on appeal and that there was a reasonable 10 probability that, but for counsel's unreasonable failure, petitioner would have prevailed on his 11 appeal. Smith v. Robbins, 528 U.S. 259, 285 (2000). The United States Supreme Court has held that 12 effective appellate counsel is not required to raise every non-frivolous claim on appeal. Jones v.
 13 Barnes, 463 U.S. 745, 751 (1983). Petitioner's claims are discussed below in the context of this 14 framework.

15 Ground 5

16 Petitioner claims appellate counsel was ineffective for refusing to raise a claim that 17 the State withheld exculpatory evidence. Petitioner contends that "D.A. Adams" had written an 18 investigation report which contradicted the in-court testimony of the victim (Betty Crisman) as to the 19 location and contents of the purse when it was stolen.

20 Respondents argue this claim lacks merit because there is nothing to suggest that such 21 a report exists or that appellate counsel was aware of it, based upon transcripts of a hearing 22 addressing one of petitioner's motions for discovery. In that motions hearing, the prosecutor advised 23 that she had made attempts to communicate with petitioner, who was acting as his own counsel at 24 the time, to provide discovery but that he refused to talk with her. This fact was confirmed by 25 petitioner's own stand-by counsel. See Exhibit 34. Respondents further contend that petitioner 26

1 offers nothing to prove that such a document exists, particularly in light of the prosecutor's 2 assurances to the court that she had or would provide all discovery in the case to petitioner.

3 In addressing this claim, the Nevada Supreme Court found that petitioner had failed 4 to show that such a report existed or that it would have been material and exculpatory, noting that the 5 victim had testified that she told the first office she spoke with that she had her finger on the purse 6 strap, and that no one told her to change her testimony. Exhibit 112, p. 18.

7 As respondents point out, the Nevada Supreme Court's factual findings are entitled to 8 a presumption of correctness, a presumption that petitioner has not overcome. 28 U.S.C. § 9 2254(e)(1). Moreover, the Court finds that the Nevada Supreme Court applied the proper federal 10 standard in an objectively reasonable manner. Ground 5 shall be denied.

11 Ground 8

12 In Ground 8, petitioner contends that his appellate counsel was ineffective for failing 13 to raise a appeal claim that larceny from the person is a lesser-included charge to robbery and that 14 assault with a deadly weapon is a lesser included charge to robbery with a deadly weapon. He 15 contends counsel should have claimed petitioner was subjected to double jeopardy on the basis of the 16 charges brought against him.

17 In the instant case, petitioner was convicted of robbery with the use of a deadly 18 weapon, where the state proved, as required by Nevada Revised Statutes (NRS) 200.380 and 19 193.165, that he took personal property from the person or presence of Betty Crisman by means of 20 force or violence or fear of injury to her person or property, or to anyone in her company at the time 21 of the robbery – namely, Stanley Turner or Clyde Estabillo – said force or fear being used to obtain 22 or retain possession of the property and/or prevent or overcome resistance to the taking of the 23 property, or to facilitate escape with the property, using a deadly weapon. See Exhibit 52, Fourth 24 Amended Information and Exhibit 68, Judgment of Conviction.

25 Petitioner was also convicted under NRS 200.380 of larceny from the person, which 26

1 requires proof that the perpetrator, intending to steal or appropriate it to his own use, take property 2 from the person of another without that person's consent; and assault with a deadly weapon under 3 NRS 200.471 and 193.165, which is the unlawful attempt to use physical force against another 4 person or intentionally placing another person in reasonable apprehension of immediate bodily harm, 5 while using a deadly weapon. Exhibit 52.

6 The Double Jeopardy Clause prohibits successive punishment for the "same offense."
7 Department of Revenue of Montana v. Kurth Ranch, 511 U.S. 767, 769, 114 S.Ct. 1937, 1945 8 (1994); United States v. Halper, 490 U.S. 435, 451, 109 S.Ct. 1892, 1903 (1989). One offense is 9 different from another if each requires proof of a fact that the other does not. Albernaz v. United 10 States, 450 U.S. 333, 339, 101 S.Ct 1137, 1142 (1981); Blockburger v. United States, 284 U.S. 299, 11 304, 52 S.Ct. 180, 182 (1932). This test is one of statutory construction. Albernaz, supra., at 340, 12 101 S.Ct. , at 1143.

13 In considering the initial part of this claim, the Nevada Supreme Court held:

14 [A]ppellant claims appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to 15 argue that appellant could not be convicted of both larceny from the 16 person and robbery, because the former is a lesser included offense 17 of the latter. This argument could only have merit if the two 18 convictions were for the same act. However, appellant's larceny 19 from the person and robbery charges stemmed from two entirely different acts: larceny from the person for taking the victim's [Crisman's] purse from her grasp, and robbery for using the threat of force to retain possession of the purse from persons who were in the victim's company [Estabillo and Turner]when her purse was taken.
[fn 39: See NRS 200.380(1).] Thus both convictions were proper.

20 Exhibit 112, p. 18-19, (identifies added). The conclusion that larceny from the person and robbery 21 were different acts in this case is reasonable in light of the evidence presented at trial.

22 Respondents next argue that assault with the use of a deadly weapon is not a lesser 23 included charge of robbery with the use of a deadly weapon because the assault charge does not 24 include the element of attempting to retain possession of the stolen property.

25 The Nevada Supreme Court held:

26

1 “[I]f the elements of one offense are entirely included within 2 the elements of a second offense, the first offense is a lesser included 3 offense.” of the second offense. [fn 26: Barton v. State, 117 Nev.
 4 686, 692, 30 P.3d 1103, 1107 (2001)(citing Blockburger v. United 5 States, 284 U.S. 299, 304 (1932).] An instruction on a lesser 6 included offense may properly be refused when “the prosecution has 7 met its burden of proof on the greater offense and there is no 8 evidence at the trial tending to reduce the greater offense” to the 9 lesser offense. [fn 27: Lisby v. State, 82 Nev. 183, 188, 414 P.2d 592, 10 595 (1966) (emphasis in original).] Our review of the record in this 11 case indicates the prosecution had met its burden of proving the 12 elements of robbery with the use of a deadly weapon and assault with 13 a deadly weapon, and the district court therefore properly refused the 14 instruction.

15 Exhibit 112, p. 12.

16 While, the Nevada Supreme Court applied the appropriate federal legal standard in 17 discussing the definition of a lesser-included charge and was correct in its assessment of the 18 appropriateness of denying a jury instruction for the lesser included charge if the evidence is 19 sufficient, the court’s application of the law is erroneous as to these two charges because it ignores 20 the fact that the elements of assault with the use of a deadly weapon charge are “entirely included 21 within the elements of” the robbery with a deadly weapon charge. As respondents argue, the 22 difference between the two charges is that the robbery charge adds an element - the assault is 23 threatened in an effort to retain the stolen property. Nonetheless, all the elements of the assault 24 charge are present within the robbery charge, making assault with a deadly weapon a lesser-included 25 charge of robbery with a deadly weapon.

26 Moreover, while the Nevada Supreme Court’s determination of the facts may be 27 accurate in finding that there was evidence enough to support the conviction for robbery with the use 28 of a deadly weapon as well as for assault with a deadly weapon, the assault charge is, in fact, a lesser 29 included charge so long as the actions were directed against the same victim in the same act.

30 The Fourth Amended Information alleges that petitioner committed robbery with the 31 use of a deadly weapon when:

[petitioner] did then and there wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously take personal property, to-wit: purse and contents, from the person of BETTY CRISMAN, or in her presence, against the will and without the consent of the said BETTY CRISMAN, by means of force or violence or fear of injury, immediate or future, to her person or property, or to the person or property of a member of her family, or of anyone in her company at the time of the robbery, to-wit: STANLEY TURNER and/or CLYDE ESTABILLO, said force or fear being used to obtain or retain possession of said property, and/or prevent or overcome resistance to the taking of said property, and/or to facilitate escape with said property, said Defendant using a deadly weapon, to - wit: a knife, during the commission of said crime.

Exhibit 52, p. 2.

The Fourth Amended Information also charged petitioner with Assault with a Deadly Weapon against Clyde Estabillo as Count IV, and against Stanley Turner as Count V. The facts supporting the assault charges were as follows:

[that petitioner] did, coupled with the present ability, wilfully, unlawfully, and feloniously attempt to commit a violent injury, with the use of a deadly weapon, upon the person of another, to-wit: Clyde Estabillo, [as to Count IV or Stanley Turner as to Count V], by swinging said knife at the said Clyde Estabillo [as to Count IV or Stanley Turner as to Count V].

Exhibit 52, pp. 2-3.

Ultimately, petitioner was convicted as to the robbery with the use of a deadly weapon and the assault with a deadly weapon charges as to Mr. Turner. He was acquitted as to the assault with the use of a deadly weapon as to Mr. Estabillo. See Exhibit 61.

In its order on appeal from the post-conviction denial, the Nevada Supreme Court made factual findings that the Robbery charge was different from the Larceny From a Person charge because the threat of force used to retain possession of the purse was actually made against the persons who were in the victim's company when her purse was taken - namely Turner and Estabillo. See Exhibit 112, p. 19. The purported victim of the acts constituting the robbery then, was not Ms. Crisman, but rather Turner or Estabillo. However, based upon the acquittal as to the assault on

1 Estabillo, it must be that the jury concluded he was not the victim of a threat of force. Therefore, 2 Estabillo could not have been the victim of the robbery.

3 Relying upon the Nevada Supreme Court's analysis of what constitutes a lesser 4 included charge and its factual findings as to the Robbery With a Deadly Weapon verses the Larceny 5 charge, the one possible conclusion is that the Assault with a Deadly Weapon charge had to be a 6 lesser included to the Robbery with a Deadly Weapon because both arose from the same act against 7 the same victim.

8 In charging and convicting petitioner on these two separate charges for the exact same 9 conduct, the prohibition against Double Jeopardy was violated. Appellate counsel's failure to raise 10 this claim on direct appeal was performance below the objective standard of adequate representation.
11 Petitioner was prejudiced by this inadequate representation because he suffered an additional felony 12 conviction and sentence to which he should not be subject. Petitioner shall be granted relief as to 13 Ground 8 and the conviction for assault with a deadly weapon shall be overturned and the sentence 14 on the charge vacated.

15 Ground 14

16 This ground claims that appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to claim on direct 17 appeal that the state failed to prove all elements of assault with a deadly weapon beyond a reasonable 18 doubt where there was no evidence offered to show the "distance in inches or feet [between] the 19 perpetrator and victim Stanley Turner." Petitioner claims the state failed to prove at trial that he was 20 close enough to Turner to commit an injury.

21 The trial record provides Turner's testimony which belies this claim. See Exhibit 58, 22 pp. 45-47. Moreover, there is no element in the crime of assault with a deadly weapon which 23 requires a showing of some particular proximity between the victim and the perpetrator. See NRS
24 200.471. This claim was properly denied by the Nevada Supreme Court which noted Turner's 25 testimony, finding it indicated that petitioner was close enough to touch Turner. Exhibit 112, p. 20.

1 Thus, petitioner cannot show that the outcome of his appeal would have been different had this claim 2 been raised. Petitioner has failed to demonstrate that the Nevada Supreme Court's determination was 3 improper under 28 U.S.C. § 2254 and this Court will not grant relief absent such a showing.

4 Ground 17

5 This ground has been dismissed as conclusory and will not be discussed further here.

6 Ground 20

7 Here, petitioner claims his appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to claim on 8 direct appeal that he was improperly denied his right to argue his theory of defense and was not 9 permitted to read various criminal statutes or discuss the complaint or the evidence presented during 10 his closing arguments.

11 This claim is belied by the record. See generally, Exhibit 60 pp. 27-37. In his closing 12 argument, petitioner advised the jury to follow the law and the jury instructions Id., at 27-28. He 13 told the jury that the complaint was inadequate and he discussed the testimony of the witnesses. Id.
14 Petitioner discussed the definition of a deadly weapon and argued his knife did not fit that 15 description. Petitioner spoke of his limited ability to put on evidence and referred to purported 16 threats to keep his mouth shut. Id. at 32. Petitioner spoke of judicial bias and asked for a fair trial.
17 On the State's objection, the trial court advised petitioner that he would not be allowed to read case 18 law into his argument, but was limited to argue the jury instructions. Id., at 35.

19 Respondents note that Nevada law limits a defendant's ability to argue legal theories 20 to a jury when those theories have not been the subject of jury instructions. Lloyd v. State, 94 Nev.
21 167, 169, 576 P.2d 740, 741 (1978). They also contend that there is no federal constitutional 22 requirement that defendants be allowed to argue specific case law in closing. Petitioner does not 23 demonstrate that the outcome of his trial, or of his appeal, would have been different had he been 24 allowed to read or discuss particular case law during his closing arguments. He was given broad 25 leeway to make the arguments that he did and this claim lacks merit, as the Nevada Supreme Court 26

1 rightfully concluded. Exhibit 112, pp. 12-13. Ground 20 shall be denied.

2 Ground 26

3 In this ground for relief, petitioner complains that appellate counsel was ineffective 4 for refusing to argue on appeal that Ms. Crisman was not in the company of Estabillo and Turner as 5 this fact relates to the charge of robbery as defined by NRS 200.380.

6 This claim, too, is belied by the record. Counsel on appeal did argue that the robbery 7 with the deadly weapon conviction should be reversed because Turner and Estabillo were not in the 8 presence of the victim at the time of the robbery. See Exhibit 86, pp. 17-18. Ground 26 is without 9 merit and shall be denied.

10 Ground 32

11 Ground 32 contends that petitioner received ineffective assistance of appellate 12 counsel for not raising a claim on direct appeal that petitioner was denied the right to read various 13 Nevada criminal statutes to the jury during his opening statements.

14 Opening statements are reserved for counsel to inform the jury of what the evidence 15 will show at trial, not to argue the law. Best v. District of Columbia, 291 U.S. 422, 415, 54 S.Ct.
16 487, 489 (1934); United States v. Zieli, 734 F.2d 1447 (11th Cir. 1984). The Nevada Supreme 17 Court's decision on this claim was not contrary to or an objectively unreasonable application of 18 clearly established federal law. Petitioner is not entitled to relief on this ground.

19 Grounds 34 and 36⁴

20 In Grounds 34 and 36, petitioner claims his constitutional rights guaranteed by the 21 Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments were denied where the trial court's *Farett*a canvass did not advise 22 petitioner of the "dangers, disadvantages and consequences of self-representation," and where the 23 Nevada Supreme Court never made a specific finding that the canvass was adequate and the waiver

24

25 ⁴ These claims are identical except that ground 34 cites the Fifth Amendment and 36 cites the 26 Fourteenth Amendment.

1 of counsel was knowing, voluntary and intelligent.

2 Fareta v. California, provides that a criminal defendant has the right to represent 3 himself so long as his waiver of the right to representation by counsel is made knowingly, 4 voluntarily, and intelligently. 422 U.S. 806, 831, 95 S.Ct. 2525, 2540-41 (1975); Johnson v. Zerbst, 5 304 U.S. 458, 464, 58 S.Ct. 1019 (1938). A defendant must be informed of the right to counsel, as 6 well as the range of punishments and potential dangers and disadvantages of self-representation.
 7 Iowa v. Tovar, 541 U.S. 77, 88, 124 S.Ct. 1379, 1387 (2004).

8 In the instant case, petitioner was actually canvassed by the court two times; once 9 fairly early in the proceedings and again later, after questions related to petitioner's competency 10 arose and were adequately addressed. See Exhibits 12 and 54. On direct appeal, the Nevada 11 Supreme Court gave this issue extensive consideration, outlining the procedural history and the 12 applicable law, both state and federal, in significant detail. Exhibit 96, pp. 14-20. The court 13 recognized the need for a pro se defendant to be competent and for the waiver of counsel to be 14 knowing, voluntary and intelligent. As in Iowa v. Tovar, the Nevada Supreme Court rejected "the 15 necessity for a mechanical performance of a Fareta canvass." Id. at 16; 541 U.S. at 89-90, 124
 16 S.Ct. at 1388-90. The court concluded

17 the record demonstrates that the district court conducted a specific, 18 penetrating and comprehensive Fareta canvass. Furthermore the 19 record supports that Hymon was competent to waive his right to counsel and that his waiver was knowing, voluntary and intelligent.

20 Exhibit 96, pp. 19-20.

21 It is the petitioner's burden to prove that the waiver of counsel was not knowing and 22 intelligent. Iowa v. Torar 541 U.S. at 92, 124 S.Ct. at 1389. He has not met that burden here. The 23 Nevada Supreme Court's determination of the facts was reasonable given the record before it. It's 24 application of federal law was objectively reasonable. Petitioner is not entitled to relief on these 25 grounds.

26

1 Ground 38

2 Ground 38 claims that appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to raise on appeal 3 a claim that petitioner's right to a theory of defense was violated where the court would not allow 4 petitioner to call "reliable witnesses of the Nevada Bar Association. . ." including several public 5 figures and various court personnel who would testify about various legal theories and concepts 6 including double jeopardy, the elements of a criminal complaint, the Nevada Revised Statutes, 7 impeachment of witnesses and the inherently dangerous weapon test.

8 At a pretrial hearing on the status of representation and trial preparation, petitioner 9 sought leave to subpoena various local, publicly known attorneys and other court staff to testify on 10 the subjects listed in this ground for relief in order "to prove to the jury that the State violated [his] 11 constitutional rights. Exhibit 54, p. 8. The court denied petitioner leave to issue the subpoenas, 12 having determined that the testimony would not be relevant to any legally tenable defense at trial, 13 explaining that such claims were more appropriate for appeal or collateral review. Exhibit 54, p. 13-14 15, 19-20.

15 In considering the claim, the Nevada Supreme Court stated:

16 Fourteenth, appellant claimed appellate counsel was ineffective for 17 failing to argue that the district court erred and showed bias by 18 refusing to let him call two attorneys to the stand to "help marshall 19 [sic] the law to the jury of the case." We disagree. It is the court's 20 province to instruct the jurors on the law. Accordingly, we conclude 21 the district court did not err in rejecting this claim.

22 Exhibit 112, p. 15.

23 This determination is not improper in the context of 28 U.S.C. § 2254. There is no 24 evidence that the court misapplied federal law or that its factual findings were unreasonable. Ground 25 38 must be denied.

26 Ground 41

27 Ground 41 claims that appellate counsel was ineffective for not claiming that the trial

1 court was biased and violated petitioner's rights in allowing the State to file a Third and Fourth 2 Amended Information or failed to rule to allow the filing and that the court participated in ex parte 3 communications with the district attorney. It is unclear from the face of the petition what issue 4 petitioner had with the Amended Informations or why he believed they were improper. Petitioner 5 offers no facts or arguments to this Court showing any prejudice that arose from the filing of these 6 amended charging documents. This claim is, therefore, conclusory and does not warrant further 7 review. Rules Governing Habeas Petitions, Rule 4. In addition, the Court also finds that the Nevada 8 Supreme Court's determination of the claim was reasonable when it held the that the addition of the 9 deadly weapon enhancement removed from the Third Amended Information and then added back in 10 in the Fourth Amended Information was not prejudicial because the Fourth Amended Information 11 was identical to the Second Amended Information, giving petition notice of the State's intent well 12 before trial. See Exhibit 112, p. 15.

13 This claim is conclusory and lacks merit. Petitioner has failed to meet his burden to 14 show the state court's determination was wrong under 28 U.S.C. § 2254.

15 III. Conclusion

16 As claimed in Ground 8, petitioner received ineffective assistance of appellate 17 counsel where counsel failed to bring a Double Jeopardy claim on direct appeal. Petitioner was 18 subject to Double Jeopardy when the State charged and the jury convicted him of both robbery with 19 the use of a deadly weapon, a violation of NRS 200.380 and 193.165, and assault with a deadly 20 weapon, a violation of NRS 200.471 and 193.165. The assault charge is a less-included charge of 21 robbery. Had counsel brought the claim to the Nevada Supreme Court, it would have changed the 22 outcome. The conviction as to Count V of the Fourth Amended Information shall be overturned and 23 the sentence vacated. Petitioner is not entitled to relief on any other ground and the petition shall be 24 denied in all other respects.

25 IV. Certificate of Appealability

26

1 Should petitioner wish to appeal this decision, he must receive a certificate of 2 appealability. 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(1); Fed. R. App. P. 22; 9th Cir. R. 22-1; Allen v. Ornoski, 435
 3 F.3d 946, 950-951 (9th Cir. 2006); see also United States v. Mikels, 236 F.3d 550, 551-52 (9th Cir.
 4 2001). Generally, a petitioner must make “a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional 5 right” to warrant a certificate of appealability. Id.; 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2); Slack v. McDaniel, 529 6 U.S. 473, 483-84 (2000). “The petitioner must demonstrate that reasonable jurists would find the 7 district court’s assessment of the constitutional claims debatable or wrong.” Id. (quoting Slack, 529 8 U.S. at 484). In order to meet this threshold inquiry, the petitioner has the burden of demonstrating 9 that the issues are debatable among jurists of reason; that a court could resolve the issues differently; 10 or that the questions are adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further. Id.

11 Pursuant to the December 1, 2009 amendment to Rule 11 of the Rules Governing 12 Section 2254 and 2255 Cases, district courts are required to rule on the certificate of appealability in 13 the order disposing of a proceeding adversely to the petitioner or movant, rather than waiting for a 14 notice of appeal and request for certificate of appealability to be filed. Rule 11(a). This Court has 15 considered the issues raised by petitioner, with respect to whether they satisfy the standard for 16 issuance of a certificate of appealability, and determines that none meet that standard. The Court 17 will therefore deny petitioner a certificate of appealability.

18 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the Motion to File Pleading in Excess of 19 Thirty Pages (ECF No. 25) is GRANTED.

20 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Ground 17 and Ground 41 are DISMISSED
 21 WITH PREJUDICE AS CONCLUSORY.

22 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus is 23 GRANTED as to Ground 8 and is DENIED as to the remaining grounds, including Ground 41, 24 which are meritless. The conviction for Assault with the Use of a Deadly Weapon, is hereby 25 OVERTURNED and the sentence is hereby VACATED. The matter is remanded to the Eighth 26

1 Judicial District Court for the sole purpose of entering a Second Amended Judgment of Conviction 2 evidencing conviction and sentences only as to Counts II, Robbery with the Use of a Deadly 3 Weapon, and Count III, Larceny From the Person.

4 IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that a Certificate of Appealability shall not issue.

5 The Clerk shall enter judgment accordingly.
